

Dear Skip & Elisa,

How do you say thank you for giving me back my son... I can only try. Thank you for coming to New Life each time and giving your all even when our kids and sometimes parents cannot. Thank you for all the golden nugget sayings, that when you think about them mean so much and translate into a path for our kids to get back the life they were suppose to live. I don't think you both realize the full impact of what you are doing. You are giving our kids the tools to change their lives and to live a life that is filled with all the dreams and goals that they let slip by while they were in the midst of this crappy thing called addiction. You are giving us parents the insight to help our kids get back on the right path, instead of enabling them. I know Nick relates so well to you both because you come from a place of understanding, of strength and of love, without judgement. The way you put all of these resources out there, is a way that they want to listen and grab onto. So on the days when your job is not easy, remember the real impact you have. Keep being the agent of change that you are for our kids, who may have gone down a wrong path and need these invaluable tools to find their way back. From my perspective, a mom's view, you and this program are truly amazing and from the bottom of my heart, I am forever grateful. Thank you, thank you, thank you!

Sincerely,

Carol